

Using hundreds of years of knowledge and techniques passed through generations of artisans, Nature's Essence has evolved today's candle making into an art form. The same unique qualities can be found in the making of our cremes and lotions.

It is craftsmanship that sets Nature's Essence apart. Our candle, lotion and creme makers — the finest in the United States — are committed to carefully maintaining these traditions and improving on the standards established generations ago.

Our chemists use only nature's finest ingredients: flowers, herbs, and essential oils. Our process requires many steps to produce each handmade product. It is this method that endows each product with rich colors, textures, and distinctive scents that you will only find in a Nature's Essence product.

Form complements function. The Nature's Essence aesthetic is clean, colorful, and healthful. These define the high standards that go into the making of our products. Our objective is to develop the finest candles, cremes and lotions to enhance the environment of our customers.

Now consumers can buy our quality candles, lotions and cremes direct from the manufacturer.
